BRITISH POLITICS.

Gladstone's Manifesto to the Electors of Midlothian.

THE ISSUE PLAINLY OUTLINED

A Letter from Lord Carnarvon in Relation to his Conference with Parnell. Preparations for the Coming Electoral Contest.

LONDON, June 13.—Gladstone has issued the following manifesto to the electors of Midlothian: Gentlemen: In consequence of the defeat of the bill for the better government of Ireland the ministry advised and her majesty was pleased to sanction dissolution of parliament for decision by the nation of the gravest and likewise simplest issue that has been submitted to it for half a century. It is only a sense of the gravity of this issue which induces me, at a period of life when nature cries aloud for repose, to seek, after sitting in thirteen parliaments, a seat in the fourteenth, and with this view I solicit for the fifth time the honor of your confidence. At the last election I endeavored in my addresses and speeches to impress upon you the fact that a great crisis had arrived in the affairs of Ireland.

Weak as the late government [illegible] was for ordinary [illegible] it had [illegible] advantages for dealing with the [illegible] that government would have received warm and extensive support [illegible] within the liberal party and would [illegible] have [illegible] the Irish controversy within the present session and have left the parliament [illegible] to prosecute the [illegible] work of ordinary legislation with the multitude of questions it includes. My earnest hope was [illegible] the late cabinet [illegible] course of policy. On the 26th of last January the opposite policy of coercion was declared to have been the choice of the government, the earl of Carnarvon, done refusing to share in it. The Irish question was thus placed in the foreground to the exclusion of every other. The hour, as all felt, was come, and the only point remaining to determine was the manner in which it was to be dealt with.

In my judgment the proposal of coercion was not justified by facts and was doomed to certain and disgraceful failure. Some method of governing Ireland other than coercion ought, as I thought, to be sought for and to be found. Therefore I viewed without regret the fall of the late cabinet, and when summoned by her majesty to form a new one I undertook it on the basis of an anti-coercion policy with the fullest explanations to those whose aid I sought as colleagues. When I proposed to examine whether it might be possible to grant Ireland a domestic legislature and maintain the honor and consolidate the unity of the empire, a government was formed and work was at once put in hand.

THE ISSUE OUTLINED.

You will, gentlemen, now understand how and why it is that the affairs of Ireland, and not for the first time, have thrust aside every subject and adjourned our hopes of useful and progressive legislation. As a question of one of man's first necessities social order it forces itself into the van. The late cabinet, though right in giving it that place, were, as we thought, wrong in their manner of treating it. It was our absolute duty, on taking the government, if we did not adopt their method, to propose another. Thus, gentlemen, it is that it is great and simple issue demands your decision: Will you govern Ireland by coercion or will you let Ireland manage her own affairs?

To debate in this address this and that detail of the lately defeated bill would only be to disguise this issue and would be as futile as to discuss the halting, stumbling, ever shifting and ever dividing projects of an intermediate class which proceeded from seceding liberals. There are two clear, positive and intelligible plans before the world. There is the plan of the government and there is the plan of Lord Salisbury. Our plan is that Ireland should, under well considered conditions, transact her own affairs. His plan is to ask parliament to renew repressive laws and enforce them resolutely for twenty years, by the end of which time he assures us Ireland will be fit to accept any government in the way of local government on the repeal of the coercion law. You may wish to give this to her. I leave history to speak for itself in its unadorned statement.

Our opponents, gentlemen, whether [illegible] or seceders, have assumed the name of unionists. I deny them the title. In truth, indeed, we are all unionists alike, but the union they refuse to modify in its present shape is a paper union obtained by force and fraud and never sanctioned or accepted by the Irish nation. They are not unionists, but paper unionists. A true union is to be tested by the sentiments of the nations united. Tried by this criterion we have less union between real Britain and Ireland now than under the settlement of 1782.

THE VOICE OF IRELAND.

Enfranchised Ireland, gentlemen, asks through her lawful representatives for revival of her domestic legislature, not on the face of it an innovation, but a restorative proposal. She urges with truth that centralization of parliaments has been a division of people, but she recognizes the fact that the union, lawlessly as it was obtained, cannot and ought not to be repealed. She is content to receive her legislature in a form divested of prerogatives which might have impaired her imperial interests and better adapted than the settlement of 1782 to secure her regular control of her own affairs. She has not repelled but has welcomed stipulations for protection of the minority. To such provisions we have given and shall give careful heed, but I trust Scotland will condemn attempts so sedulously made to import into the controversy the venomous element of religious bigotry. Let her take warning by the deplorable riots in Belfast and other places in the north.

Among the benefits I anticipate from your acceptance of our policy are these: Consolidation of the united empire and great addition to its strength; stoppage of the heavy, constant and demoralizing waste of public treasure; abatement and gradual extinction of ignoble feuds in Ireland, and that development of her resources which experience shows to be the natural consequence of free and orderly government; redemption of the honor of Great Britain from the stigma fastened upon her almost from time immemorial in respect to Ireland, by the judgment of the whole civilized world; and lastly, restoration of parliament to its dignity and efficiency and regular progress of the business of the country.

QUESTIONS TO BE ANSWERED.

Well, gentlemen, the first question I now put to you is how shall Ireland be governed? There is another question behind it and involved in it. How are England and Scotland to be governed? You know how for the last six years, especially, the affairs of England and Scotland have been impeded and your imperial parliament discredited and disabled. All this happened while the nationalists were but a small minority of the Irish members without support from so much as a handful of members not Irish. Now they approach ninety, and are entitled to say we are speaking the views of Ireland as a nation. It is impossible to deal with this subject by half measures. They are [illegible] in British support [illegible] members to vote for their convictions; strongest of all is the sense of being right.

But, gentlemen, we have done our part. The rest remains for you, the electors of the country. May you be enabled to see through and cast away all delusions, refuse the evil and choose the good. I have the honor, gentlemen, to be your faithful and grateful servant, WM. E. GLADSTONE.

A LETTER FROM LORD CARNARVON.

LONDON, June 13.—The earl of Carnarvon has written a letter with reference to his interview with Mr. Parnell, in which he says that the meeting was due neither to his nor Parnell's initiative but was brought about by other parties. The earl continues: "I am unable to understand how Parnell misapprehended my conditions of the interview. I recollect perfectly stating them. The purport and tenor of the conversation left an entirely different impression on my mind. I promised nothing. Mr. Parnell talked. I put questions [illegible] suggested difficulties and raised objections [illegible] to explain. He dwelt upon the character and functions of a central legislature, the necessity [illegible] Irish industries, the [illegible] parts of Ireland, the commercial depression and relations and the difficulties between landlords and tenants. I remember [illegible] some kind [illegible] I think some limited kind of protection as necessary to protect Irish industries to which I replied that whatever my individual opinion might be as regards protection, such proposal must arouse great objection among many classes. I said nothing implying concurrence of the government in the plan to give free and statutory parliament, with power to protect Irish industries. I regret that any impression was so different from Parnell's. I do not wish to impute any unfairness to him. I found him during the conversation frank and straightforward. I only regret that he so greatly misunderstood me. I must reaffirm that I never said anything on these subjects in any wise committing others."

CHAMBERLAIN.

LONDON, June 13.—Chamberlain will preside [illegible] of the national radical union [illegible] Birmingham on Thursday.

CABLE SPECIALS.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Cable special from London [illegible] statements in the house of [illegible] dissolution, doubts about [illegible] necessity for which few dispute and [illegible] never so [illegible] Writs will be out by June 24th and [illegible] by the middle of [illegible] conditions stands pledged to convoke the [illegible] parliament [illegible] if a majority be against [illegible] government [illegible] sufficient until October. The [illegible] who had resolved to [illegible] August have [illegible] field. Chamberlain's letters disclaiming tory support for himself was supposed to indicate a conciliatory spirit toward his former leader, but this manifesto in a document Gladstone will never forgive. Nothing could be more courteous in language but nothing more exasperating to a man of Gladstone's temperament than this historical survey of his recent course. Chamberlain sets in a clear dry light the contrast between the programme Gladstone offered to the country before election and the policy imposed on his party in parliament since. He quotes Gladstone against Gladstone. When Gladstone, says Chamberlain, solemnly declared it to be unsafe to enter upon the question of union as the party were dependent upon the Irish vote, the liberals little dreamed that he would presently enter into an alliance with the Parnellites to carry home rule. The manifesto is a direct though decorous personal attack on Gladstone and puts him on his defense. It is regarded here as equivalent to renunciation of the hope of common action in the future.

Parliament drags on with routine business and [illegible] of the [illegible] to [illegible] condition is too great to allow [illegible]

THE RADICAL LEADER'S POLICY.

Criticisms of the Irish bill on grounds already familiar are followed by a declaration of the radical leader's readiness to maintain the law of England which in Lord Salisbury's mouth would be called coercion. The policy which he proposes in the place of Gladstone's present bill may be summed in two phrases—local self government and federation for all parts of the United Kingdom. This may introduce a new issue in the electoral contest, but the vital issue lies with no single individual to determine.

The Times treats dissolution as a penal measure saying that parliament only six months old is dissolved in order that Gladstone may endeavor to drive from it all those men who accepted his manifesto, as since read, and who loyally adhered to the liberal principles as laid down by himself.

Practically the result of the election will depend on the degree of harmony between the different sections of unionists who composed Monday's majority. Tory leaders admit the difficulties of inducing local managers to support liberal unionist candidates. Liberal caucuses show themselves relentless to members who voted against the second reading. Illegal at Burnley and Came at Forth were condemned by a great majority. They like many others must depend for re-election on tory votes, which Chamberlain can afford to reject. His seat in West Birmingham is not attacked, nor is Hartington's. Schnadhorst is now active in general to the cabinet. He does not think [illegible]

GLADSTONE AND ROSEBERRY.

Gladstone, regardless of this risk to his voice, meditates a [illegible] Midlothian campaign, but speaks first at Glasgow, where Irish are multitudinous. His spirits and strength are both marvelous. Lord Roseberry's journey to Balmoral, where he is appointed to remain till Monday as minister in attendance on the queen, has a significance which beyond the discharge of a routine duty. Some cabinet minister is supposed to be always in attendance. Lord Roseberry leaves the foreign office while critical negotiations are pending, because he is almost the only cabinet minister whom the queen personally likes. He is, moreover, Gladstone's intimate personal friend, possesses the full political confidence of his chief and practically goes as embassador from the prime minister to the sovereign in a mission which circumstances make peculiarly delicate.

The strain of the political situation is grievously affecting personal friendship. Civilities and public intercourse are maintained between Gladstone and his colleagues. They continue to refer to each other in the house as "my right honorable friend," but in private and to some extent in public the personal bitterness expressed begins to assimilate English politics to French politics. Animosity shows itself most strongly against Chamberlain, but the attempt to justify it by accusing Chamberlain of calumniating Gladstone has broken down.

NEWS FOR O'CONNOR.

NEW YORK, June 13.—T. P. O'Connor cables from London to the Star: Ever since the first announcement of the proposed dissolution of parliament has been almost wholly taken up by the selection of candidates for seats to be contested. The number of gentlemen offering themselves is unprecedented and embarrassing. Instead of a dearth of applicants for the honor of fighting under Gladstone's banner, there are far too many, and the trouble is to pick out those most fit. Funds at the disposal of the premier are still insufficient to meet the election expenses of two-thirds of the men awaiting to be selected. The question of nomination is therefore left in many cases to private influences. Nothing could be more unfortunate. From South England counties accounts received by Gladstone managers are bad. Three fourths of the [illegible] and the [illegible] command of the [illegible] rendering the defeat of Gladstone men almost certain. There are, however, oases in this drought. Even in the south where the home rule organization is strong and hopeful and gaining every day. Notwithstanding the discouraging reports from this part of Great Britain scarcely a seat will be left uncontested. From the rest of the country reports of liberal agents are satisfactory, especially from the north of England and Wales and the liberals maintain their hopes.

NEW YORK, June 13.—In his cable special to the Star T. P. O'Connor says: His [illegible] counted safe except possibly [illegible] The intention to contest Birmingham against Chamberlain has been given up. Gladstone's fears that if the opposition be [illegible] and [illegible] strength now undivided [illegible] Chamberlain will be left without a following in parliament, which is the last thing, tactician of the party would desire. The more the opposition is split in separate [illegible] the better [illegible] the eventual [illegible] of [illegible]

RIOT AT SLIGO.

DUBLIN, June 13.—A serious riot occurred in Sligo last evening and several Protestant houses were wrecked.

SLIGO, June 13.—The residence of a leading Orangeman was burned last night by a mob. The military charged and shot some of the rioters. Extra policemen have been drafted. The town is quiet to-day. The rioting was organized by Catholics who were angry because somebody had destroyed the railings that surrounded the bishop's palace. They gathered in thousands and attacked the houses of Protestants and molested and hooted many persons. The windows of every house in which it was known a Protestant dwelt were smashed. The county club house, the Constitutional club house, a Methodist church, the residence of a Congregational minister and several chapels were attacked and wrecked. Orangemen made no attempt to retaliate. The mayor, a nationalist, and several of the magistrates penetrated to the front of the mob and tried to appease them, but without avail. The riot act was then read and soldiers were ordered to clear the streets with fixed bayonets. A general stampede ensued, during which sixteen rioters were arrested.

EVIDENCE AGAINST MOONLIGHTERS.

LIMERICK, June 13.—The police have received through an informer important evidence against members of moonlight gangs in Clare, Limerick and Kerry. All the gangs are perfect organizations directed by chiefs, bound by oaths and having a system of passwords. Several arrests are impending.

BELGIUM.

CONFERENCE OF SOCIALISTS.

BRUSSELS, June 13.—At a conference of 400 socialist delegates to-day it was resolved to continue the agitation in favor of universal suffrage and to commence a general strike when the workingmen have sufficient strength. It was also decided to hold a monster demonstration on August 15, the date of the national fetes. If the government prohibited this demonstration a general strike will be declared. The meeting adopted a resolution expressing sympathy with the socialists of Decazeville, The Hague, Ghent, London, Germany and Chicago.

GERMANY.

THE DEPOSED KING LUDWIG.

MUNICH, June 13.—King Ludwig to-day took his departure for Berg castle on lake Starnberg. The scenes along the route of the journey were very affecting. Ludwig knelt in the roadways weeping. The king responded to their greetings mournfully but kindly. He looked pale and worn. The utmost precautions have been taken to prevent him from committing suicide.

SPAIN.

THE QUEEN REGENT.

MADRID, June 13.—The queen regent presided to-day at the first cabinet council since her accouchement. To celebrate that event she has commuted the sentences of certain classes of prisoners.

THE BALLOT BOX.

Put away the ballot box;
The old thing's out of date;
At last Monday last broke the heart
Of many a candidate.

Put away the walnut frame,
Which causes grief and fear
And give politics a rest
For one good honest year.

Sinful but Human.
Kansas City Times.

Mrs. Samuel Jones, the wife of the revivalist, is very human. It is narrated that Samuel managed to save enough of his earnings to buy an elegant family equipage, and the first day Mrs. Jones had her carriage she drove by the house of one neighbor thirteen times by actual count. This may be very sinful, but we repeat, it is very human.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—In the house of representatives to-morrow the committee on District of Columbia will claim the floor under the rules, and consume the day with legislation of a general character. Tuesday the consideration of the legislative appropriation bill will be resumed, and although little that should cause delay remains to be acted upon, yet it is probable that antagonism that has been developed to the appropriation committee will manifest itself in a few stray shots. But this bill is [illegible] off the field before Thursday there will be a struggle for position between the labor committee armed with a number of measures drawn in the interest of the working men and the naval committee with the naval reform [illegible] bill. The members of the naval committee think their bill can be disposed of in two days and it is at least probable if they succeed in getting it up that it will be passed before the [illegible] the struggle over the tariff bill. Personal and political debates as lively as those which characterized the proceedings of the house last week are also expected this week, an incidental effect of which will be to secure increased attendance of members. The roll call of Saturday revealed the absence of over 140 members, but friends of reform are making to secure a full house when Mr. Morrison moves to take up the tariff bill.

IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

In the senate the Northern Pacific forfeiture bill is the unfinished business and is to be taken up to-morrow. When it is disposed of the bill to repeal the pre-emption timber culture and desert land acts will be taken up. Following that it is expected a day will take place upon the report of the disagreement of the conferees upon the [illegible] appropriation bill. The committee on appropriations expect to report the pensions and military [illegible] bills early in the week but may not press them to consideration at once. Should any time remain not demanded by these committees on appropriations the Des Moines bill and the open session resolution will be taken up in their turn.

Five of the eleven appropriation bills, namely the District of Columbia, the postoffice, the consular and diplomatic, the agricultural and the army have passed both houses and await the action of the conference committees. Three, the pensions, the military academy and the river and harbor, are in the hands of senate committees, and five, the legislative, the naval, the sundry civil, the fortifications and the general deficiency have not yet been passed by the house. Only one, the Indian, has reached the president.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS.

HE WAS ONCE AN OFFENSIVE PARTISAN.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Tribune's Washington special: John B. Hayes, the man who passed Miss Folsom's baggage free of duty without inspection and was recently removed from the position of inspector of the New York custom house, was in Washington to-day to find out why he was removed. At the time he passed the baggage Secretary Lamont, who met Miss Folsom, thanked him and said if he could ever do him a good turn to let him know. Hayes sent in his card to Lamont today and the latter refused to see him.

Assistant Secretary Smith of the treasury department, on whom he then called, told him frankly that he had been removed him.

"On what ground?" asked Hayes.

"Offensive partisanship," answered Smith.

"Why, Mr. Secretary," said Hayes, "I haven't had anything to do with politics in ten years."

"You once lived in Meadville, Pa.," said the secretary, "and had a record there as a political worker. It is on that you were removed."

"I lived in Meadville sixteen years ago," said Hayes, in telling the story later in the day. "I served all through the war and was appointed to [illegible]"

MISS CLEVELAND WILL RETURN.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Washington special: I hear that Miss Cleveland is likely to return to the White house in the autumn and that in the [illegible] she will spend a good deal of time with [illegible] A lady who called on her the day before she went away informs me that Miss Cleveland said: "I shall go away [illegible] and I dare say on the [illegible] be in the White house [illegible] if there had been no wedding. I [illegible] believe that the new mistress of the White house should be under no restraint whatever. Every woman called to such position [illegible] her individuality. No training before [illegible] woman for the place and its duties [illegible] learn afterward and the great cardinal rule [illegible] her own course and rely on herself. Miss Folsom is a bright and attractive young woman. She has character and will. I am sure develop strength and adaptability. I am sure she will be much liked. Indeed nobody can help but like her. She is a sensible, sweet girl, a thorough American woman and that is what we want in the White house you know."

A CALIFORNIAN MAKES A STREET SPEECH.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—J. S. McFee, editor of the Valley Democrat of Los Angeles, last night attempted to make a speech on the latter just on Pennsylvania avenue but was prevented by the police, who informed him that only the gospel could be preached in the streets. He then announced that he would preach a sermon at the same place to-night. A large and enthusiastic crowd of working men assembled to-night to hear him. He attacked the land grant system and is direct taxation and advised locked-out working men to prepare for co-operation. The police did not put in an appearance.

EASTERN NEWS ITEMS.

LATEST CROP RETURNS.

CHICAGO, June 13.—The following crop summary will appear in this week's Farmers' Review: The great fear of drouth, which has been threatening the spring wheat sections, still continues to be a serious menace to growing grain. Very hot winds prevailed in Dakota and Minnesota added to the already serious outlook in many sections of that state and territory. The effects of the drouth have begun to be seriously felt in Wisconsin, Iowa and Nebraska, and very few of the reports received down to Saturday night bear upon that fact. Many fields of oats are reported to be turning yellow, and the injury to that cereal threatens now to be more severe than even to wheat itself.

Reports from Indiana indicate that the yield of winter wheat will fall slightly below the average. In one of the counties wheat has gone back during the past three or four weeks.

The general prospect in Ohio continues good and the state has promise of a full average yield.

In Kansas and Michigan prospects have [illegible] the [illegible] report indicating that [illegible] will not produce to exceed eleven million [illegible] confirms reports of wheat bread [illegible] the crops early in the season.

Harvesting is progressing in Missouri, [illegible] Kentucky and Tennessee and the general tenor of reports continues very favorable.

EX-PRESIDENT ARTHUR.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Special inquiries made regarding ex-President Arthur's condition elicited the fact that he is much weaker than he was a few months ago. His most intimate friends will not willingly acknowledge that his general condition is gradually but surely growing worse, but they regard him as a very sick man. Those who have been with him much during his illness, strongly say that he is suffering from Bright's disease but say most positively that he is suffering from organic trouble and his sickness to-day is due wholly to stomach disarrangement, augmented by extreme [illegible] His stomach is not able to assimilate food except of the lightest and most easily digestible description. His general diet has been a mixture of whisky and milk. It is planned to take Mr. Arthur to New London about the middle of the month. All arrangements have been made for him to occupy a cottage there. It is believed he will be able to stand the journey, the change will be very beneficial to him.

MISS FOLSOM'S BAGGAGE.

NEW YORK, June 13.—It has been generally reported that when Miss Frances Folsom arrived on the Noordland in this port and was carried off by the revenue cutter Chandler, her baggage was passed through the custom house without inspection. Superintendent Wyatt said yesterday that only a small part of her baggage came with her on the Noordland and this was put through the usual examination by Inspector J. B. Hayes, but nothing dutiable was found. The greater part of her baggage subsequently arrived as freight on the [illegible] and passed through the usual forms and duties declared were paid. "Miss Folsom was treated exactly as other passengers," said Superintendent Wyatt.

THE OREGON BOND ISSUE.

A WOMAN IN LUCK.

ST. LOUIS, June 13.—Mrs. Sam'l Vining, residing at No. [illegible] St. Louis avenue, has received from the secretary Bayard information to the effect that she is entitled to receive from the United States treasury $1,000,000 awarded by the court of claims under the terms of the French spoliation bill.

BROADSWORD CONTEST.

DENVER, June 13.—About 4000 people attended the broadsword contest in Baseball park this afternoon between Duncan Ross, Royal Scotch Greys, [illegible] and Sergeant Walsh, U. S. army.

The contest was won by Ross in the seventeenth attack when the score stood eleven to six in favor of Walsh. At this juncture Ross struck Walsh a terrible blow over the head, knocking him senseless from his horse and so disabling him that he could not mount again when time was called, and the match was given to Ross.

CLEARING HOUSE RETURNS.

BOSTON, June 13.—The following figures, compiled from dispatches to the Post from the managers of the leading clearing houses in the United States, show the clearances for the week ending June 12, 1886, compared with those of the corresponding week last year: Total $8[illegible]; increase [illegible] per cent.

NOTES FROM WASHINGTON CITY.

(Correspondence of the Oregonian.)

WASHINGTON, June [illegible]

The committee on commerce recommend the passage of a bill making provision for the following light houses on the Oregon coast: For the purchase of a site and the construction of a first order coast light house at Cape Meares, Tillamook bay, the cost of which shall not exceed the sum of $40,000; for the purchase of a right of way from Cape Orford light station to the town of Cape Orford, $3,000.

During the present session for a winter the national banks have in a great measure been a [illegible] rest. They are right interesting institutions too, as money, even if possessed by others, has a certain attraction, and as a consequence we like to read of banks, their wealth and profits, and in fact everything connected with them. There is a steady growth in the number of national banks in Oregon, there being twelve, and they represent a total capital of $935,000. As everybody occasionally sees their bills, it can be said that they contribute nearly a half million dollars to the paper circulation of the country, the exact amount being $[illegible]

Judging from the late reports these banks are undoubtedly making money, as the individual profits reach the sum of $618,655.63 and the surplus fund amounts to $81,600. They hold as individual deposits the snug pile of $[illegible] besides several hundred thousands as government deposits. Their total liabilities are $5,031,[illegible]

When we come to look at the resources of the banks it is seen that they have out as loans and discounts $2,[illegible] and that they have on hand a million and a half of bonds. The real estate owned by them is valued at $19[illegible] Of course the principal cash on hand is specie, and it foots up $[illegible] while the legal tenders only amount to $[illegible] the bills of other national banks $1[illegible] and the small change $[illegible] While the banks are required to hold a lawful money reserve of $[illegible] they in reality have as such reserve $[illegible]

I was a little curious to see how the banks of this state are prospering, and perhaps it will be of equal interest to my readers so as figures cannot lie and they are accessible the statement is appended. The amount paid as dividends for the year was $82,000, but the net earnings reached the much larger sum of $[illegible] after the losses were [illegible] The banks really earned over [illegible] per cent on both capital and surplus.

The Oregon banks have a much larger amount of money, relatively considered, out on personal endorsement than is found in other sections. The following is the classification of loans and discounts: On single name paper $[illegible] all other loans $1[illegible]

There has never been a failure of a national bank in the state. The charter of one having expired by limitation, however, it had to be renewed under the law.

The committee on pensions have been asked to recommend that a pension of $50 a month be granted to [illegible] Hasler of Oregon, in lieu of the pension he is now receiving.

In a report submitted by Commissioner of Fish [illegible] Baird relative to operations at the Clackamas river station and hatchery, which it has been said did not seem to be in the right point to be of any benefit to the upper Columbia, the following occurs:

"Washington," the attention of those who are in what seems to me one of the best streams east of the Cascade mountains, namely the Des Chutes river, especially in the vicinity of the Warm Springs agency. This river runs within a few miles of the agency and for some distance above and below where the Agency river empties into it there are numerous coarse gravel or cobblestone bars where the salmon deposit their spawn, so the Indians say, and as salmon can often be seen on these bars during August and September I have no doubt the Indians are correct. The Des Chutes is the largest stream that enters the Columbia between the mouth of the Snake river and east of the Cascades. The temperature of the water is quite uniform the year round, always cool enough to be good drinking water during the hottest days of summer and never cold enough in winter to freeze. During eight years the river has but once risen as high as seven feet above low water. Some winters it does not rise two feet. All these points seem to me to make it a very desirable stream for the propagation of salmon. As the river enters the Columbia above all the principal salmon fisheries, it would be an equal benefit to all."

The agents of the Northern Pacific are making strenuous efforts to avoid any inimical legislation at the present session. At each end of the capitol their attorneys are busy as bees, and they have their hands full as this congress does not give evidence of any regard for land grant roads. The resolution reported from the committee on Pacific railroads directing the secretary of the interior to demand information from the Northern Pacific people relative to certain alleged discriminations against towns and individuals in Washington is a thorn in their side and every effort is being made to overcome any effect the resolution may have upon railroad prospects. In fact, though it does not now look as if any particularly adverse legislation to the company would be accomplished at this session.

VOTE AND COMMENT.

James H. Marr, chief clerk of the first assistant postmaster-general, has been longer employed than any other living employe in the department service of the government at Washington. Marr is [illegible] years of age and entered the service in 1831.

The colored Methodists have now the largest church in Washington. It is on M street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets northwest, in a fashionable neighborhood. It cost $110,000, of which all but $18,000 has been raised, and seats 800 people.

The Ohio liquor dealers have made up their minds to fight the Dow [illegible] tax law recently passed by the legislature of that state, and eminent counsel will be employed for that purpose. The law is a reasonable one and is believed by high legal authority to be constitutional.

The prince and princess of Wales have fixed on the 8th of this month for the laying of the foundation stone of the People's palace in East London, the building of which it is said was suggested by the novel "All Sorts and Conditions of Men." It will cost $[illegible] of which $[illegible] has been raised.

Mr. Joe Jefferson is one of the wealthiest actors in America. He is not making so much money now as he used to do for the simple reason that he does not give himself the trouble. He acts only about sixteen weeks in the year, and this affords him all that he needs for his yearly maintenance without at all impairing his capital. Mr. Jefferson's fortune is variously estimated at from $[illegible] to $600,000.

At the coming commencement of Williams college, June [illegible] will be celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the election of President Mark Hopkins. That venerable instructor will on June [illegible] deliver the annual address before the alumni. His record at Williams briefly stated has been as follows: Entered 1820; graduated 1824; tutor [illegible] professor of moral philosophy and rhetoric [illegible] president and professor of intellectual and moral philosophy [illegible] professor of Christian theology; 1872 resigned presidency in 18[illegible] but retained the professorship which he holds and actively fills to the present time.

EVERY HOUSE IN TOWN IN ASHES.

Several Lives Lost and Many People Burned—Two Men Drowned on the Upper Willamette—Pennoyer's Remarks at Astoria.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., June 13.—[illegible] Parties arriving from Vancouver state that at [illegible] this afternoon the wind rose to a gale and caused fires which were burning on the Canadian Pacific railway reserve to spread toward the city. A house on the extreme west end caught fire and the flames spread rapidly to all the adjacent buildings. At 4 o'clock the last house in town was in ashes. The Hastings saw mill and the Royal City planing mill, being situated on points of land outside the town, were saved. Five persons are reported dead and several seriously, if not fatally injured. The firm of J. M. [illegible] & Co. lost $[illegible] insurance $[illegible] The total loss is estimated at $1,000,000; insurance $[illegible] One thousand people are homeless.

STATE DISPATCHES.

TWO MEN DROWNED AT THE MOUTH OF THE [illegible]

ALBANY, Or., June 13.—Yesterday afternoon, while the steamer Isabelle was on the down trip from here she ran aground near the mouth of the [illegible] The purser, J. F. White, and Sherman McClung, son of Isaac McClung, of this city, got into a skiff and started to the shore with a line. When they were within thirty feet of the shore the skiff was capsized by the line becoming tangled. The men started to swim ashore but the swift current prevented them, and after being swept down the current fully [illegible] yards together, they sank and both were drowned.

The captain, upon seeing them in the water, threw over a gang plank, jumped on it and started to their assistance. When seventy five yards from the steamer his plank struck a snag and was overturned, and but for the assistance of a man who was fishing from a skiff near by he would have drowned.

Another man on the boat, being a good swimmer, threw off his coat and boots and jumping into the water started to the assistance of the drowning man, and came near drowning himself, after drifting with the current a quarter of a mile.

PENNOYER AT ASTORIA.

He Speaks from the Hotel Balcony, Predicting a Bright Future for the Place.

ASTORIA, June 13.—A large crowd was at the dock to await the arrival of the steamer Olympian, bearing Governor-elect Pennoyer. Cushing post band played a number of patriotic airs while the steamer was landing. A reception committee consisting of Mayor Trullinger, C. J. Trenchard, Albert Kinney, W. G. Ross and C. H. Page, waited on Pennoyer and escorted him to the Occidental hotel, followed by large crowds. In answer to calls Pennoyer appeared on the balcony and was introduced by Mayor Trullinger. Pennoyer spoke as follows:

Fellow Citizens of Astoria: I am much gratified by this cordial and unexpected ovation. I did not expect it. I came here as the guest of my young friends of company G, little thinking that by so doing I should meet with this reception and be called upon for a speech. I cannot, however, refrain from saying a word or two to you who favored me with such a very flattering vote on last Monday. I cannot begin to express the gratitude I feel towards you in return for that honor. I am especially proud of that vote. It was the expression of a city which has the enviable notoriety of being the very first outpost of Saxon enterprise on the Northwest Pacific coast. Here first in Oregon was planted the standard of Caucasian civilization which has been [illegible] tion is the proud offspring of the infant settlement first planted in this town. Here first civilization began its warfare against savagery and here now I find the people true to the memory of their ancestors, because on last Monday you recorded your votes in favor of American civilization as against Mongolian paganism.

This town also was the first commercial city of the Northwest. What there is of it now is mainly due to its commercial advantages and its future is done dependent upon the development of the commerce of Oregon. Situated at the mouth of one of the most lordly rivers of the world, capable of 1000 miles of steamboat navigation upon its own waters and 300 miles more on the waters of its tributaries, it has before it a brilliant prospect in the future. It has not grown much because it has been as a giant shackled. This grand river from its mouth to its source has been under the control of a private corporation, which has checked the commerce of the river and thus retarded the growth of your city. Remove these shackles and this old historic town will awaken to renewed life and growth. There is in the not far distance a bright prospect for your fair city. With the Columbia river opened to unrestricted commerce you will behold its waters covered with the steamers and barges bringing the commodities of the inland empire to your wharves and bearing thence the products of your manufactures, which such commerce will bring into life. May God speed that day. Again I thank you for this visit of congratulation.

Company G, ministers headed by their own band, followed the political procession and the streets were more lively than any day for a long time.

ENGLISH MINISTERS AND SALARIES.

There are twice as many cabinet ministers in England as here, and in most cases the salaries paid them are more than three times as great as the American ministers receive. The secretary of state for foreign affairs and the secretary of state for the colonies, who receive $50,000 a year between them, do the work that is here accomplished by the secretary of state, who gets $8,000 per annum. The former besides has sixteen under secretaries to help him and the latter twelve, and two private secretaries each receiving annual salaries of $1500 to $11,000 each. There is moreover a secretary of state for India, who gets $25,000 a year and who has a number of under secretaries. The first lord of the treasury and the chancellor of the exchequer get $25,000 apiece, and the junior lords of the treasury, who number two dozen, get $5,000. The secretary of state for home affairs gets $25,000 a year; the solicitor-general and parliamentary counsel $1[illegible] apiece and the latter has an assistant at $10,000. The president of the privy council gets $10,000, as also does the vice president of the council on education. The first lord of the admiralty gets $25,000, and the president of the board of trade and of the local government board, offices resigned by Messrs. Chamberlain and Dilke, respectively, get $10,000 a year apiece. The chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, the auditor general, the chairman of the customs department and of the inland revenue office, with a solicitor, get $10,000 apiece, while the chief secretary for Ireland gets over $22,000 and an under secretary $1[illegible] The postmasters general get $1[illegible] Aside from the presidents [illegible] salary paid to any one in the executive branch of our government is $8000.

THEY SELL THEIR GAME.

This is a feature of English sport that I never ceased to wonder at, writes Adam Badeau in one of his papers on the English aristocracy. THE INDEPENDENT VOTER.

The "independent vote" is the unknown factor in every political election. The independent voter is sometimes a political cynic, who smiles and sneers at the finest enthusiasm of his fellows, sometimes he is a party "sorehead," who has grown green with envy or sour with jealousy and disappointment. Whether he acts as Diogenes, who always sneered, or as Democritus, who always laughed, the world pays very little attention, for it knows that intellectual and moral independence is represented by Mephistophiles making ducks and drakes of great principles, sometimes speaking in the accents of virtue and sometimes acting with the malignity of a fiend. But the genuine independent voter—the man who, without any selfish or personal interests to be served, wants to make politics as decent, respectable and unselfish as possible and who therefore opposes rings, and strikes at men of bad personal and political character—is the man for the country. Without him it would be impossible to reform any public abuse, for if all men voted the "regular ticket" without inquiry or discrimination no abuse, however flagrant or inveterate, could be amended or removed.

It will be admitted, then, even by the most strenuous sticklers for "party regularity," that there is a limit beyond which "the party" cannot rightly command the services of the voter. This being admitted, it follows in the final analysis that each voter must decide for himself when this limit has been reached. Each elector is the judge, and there is no judgment, certainly no authority, as regards his own political conduct, superior to his own. This logic gives us the independent voter—the individual who displayed himself in the election in Oregon that took place last week. But people analyze as well as criticise the motives of action, and if the motives of the independent voter are not worthy, if they are merely selfish, personal or malignant, he will have no associates to support his action, and will be a mere cipher, not even a simple unit in the movement of the body politic. On the other hand if his views are rational and just, if he is protesting against a real abuse in the conduct of a party or its leadership, he is on strong ground, his fellow citizens act with him in large numbers upon a common impulse, and the body of independent voters becomes large enough to upset the calculations of ring managers, to administer the rebuke demanded by the times and circumstances, and to correct abuses that would be incorrigible if every one continued to vote without question the ticket of his party. For men to go with the party is easy and natural, and no protest against party that was not well founded ever amounted to anything. When the independent voter protests against a real abuse he has company enough. When his protest proceeds from narrow, selfish, personal, malignant or otherwise unworthy motives, it gets no hearing, he becomes a nuisance and soon finds out that he is not a factor at all.

THE COMING FOURTH.

Preparations are being made to celebrate the Fourth of July in this city in a manner becoming the importance of this anniversary. While each recurring Fourth is celebrated in a way, it has become a national custom to make a special demonstration each decade, in the year corresponding with "'76." Throughout the cities of the East there will this year be celebrations of special interest, and it is desired to make one in Portland that will exhibit the patriotic spirit of the people of this state. A committee of citizens has taken the matter in hand and we are assured that no labor will be spared to make the day a grand one.

It is common in these days of cynicism to sneer at the celebration of the Fourth of July as a silly masquerade unbecoming a people who have not even childish things, but those who play. These celebrations keep the people in mind of the history and spirit of our country and revive the martial spirit of our young men. They go a great way to keep alive that vigilance which is the price of liberty. This is old fashioned doctrine but it is all the better for being old fashioned. It is the truth and is recognized as such by all who give heed to the impulses and influences which affect mankind.

But the chief value of patriotic demonstrations lies in the fact that they teach an important lesson to children. They impress the rising generations with impulses which no amount of cold historic reading can arouse. They make patriots of little fellows who but for them would never have any real heart-felt conception of their duty to love and honor their country. What man, particularly if he be country bred and little accustomed in his youth to ceremonials, but recalls the spirit roused within him by the music, the march, the resounding anvils, the grand oration, the whole mimic pomp of some rural Fourth of July demonstration? Many men, most men in fact, get their first real patriotic inspirations in this way. Then as a lesson to youth, if for no other purpose, the celebration of this day should not be neglected. It is as useful in its way as our public schools. The good old custom should not be allowed to die out because there are a few sneerers, more than religion should be allowed to die out because there are many scoffers.

The coming celebration in this city will cost some money, not a great deal relatively, but a few thousand dollars, and our people will be asked to give. We trust there will be no niggardly holding back in a matter of such real importance. It ought not to escape the notice of the retail community that an elaborate celebration will fill the city with visitors and that a liberal contribution will be in fact a good business investment.

THE O. R. & N. ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Oregon Railway & Navigation company will be held in this city on the 21st inst. The chief business will be the election of officers, but in this there is no special interest this year, it being considered already that the old board will be re-elected. This means, of course, the re-election of Elijah Smith to the presidency. Brayton Ives, who gave Smith such a hard fight last year, expected to try again, but he has not succeeded in getting the support he counted on and has retired from the contest. There will be no change in the management of the road unless Mr. Smith chooses to make it, and it is not believed that he will do more than supply a new traffic manager in place of Mr. Muir.

The Oregon Railway & Navigation company is very much less under local influence than it was a year ago. At that time W. S. Ladd was the largest individual stockholder, and he, with other lesser holders of stock in this city, held the balance of power in the contest between Smith and Ives. In casting their votes with Smith they were able to secure certain concessions as to persons and policies which were considered to be of advantage to this state. Mr. Ladd, so it is reported, has "unloaded," and the large interest held by him is now in the hands of Eastern men. In this situation there is, of course, some uncertainty.

We have not sufficient acquaintance with the affairs of the company to know what it can or what it can not afford, but we believe it could and that it ought to make some reduction of rates on grain from the Columbia river basin to Portland. The price of wheat has fallen to a level which leaves the producer a slender and insufficient return for his labor and expense after paying the rates now charged from the field to the market at Portland. In seasons of great production there is a little profit, but in off years there is absolute loss. The country needs cheaper transportation, and the people believe that they ought to have it. If it is possible for the company to do it, some concession to this public necessity and public sentiment ought to be made. This matter we hope will not escape consideration at the stockholders' meeting.

THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN advertises a new novel to run as a serial in its columns, entitled "Strahan." But we are told that the chairman of the republican state central committee, with the bogus tickets, will not figure in the story.

THE LONE FISHERMAN.

The present attitude of the ring party is fairly typified by "the Lone Fisherman," the idiotic angler who is so amusingly presented in the burlesque of "Evangeline." The Lone Fisherman always appears in season and out of season sitting in silence on a rock, angling most industriously from morning till night, and frequently capturing some questionable trophy that produces a fit of alarm or dejection. On one occasion the Lone Fisherman tugs with frantic energy at his straining pole and line and lands an enormous eel that immediately winds around him until in the struggle he looks like an aborted Laocoon wrestling with the serpents. On another occasion the solitary sportsman becomes aware that his hook is heavily weighted with something and by a powerful effort he brings to the surface a pair of water-soaked pantaloons. Dropping this unexpected prize the Lone Fisherman instantly jumps to his feet and stares eagerly into the water, silently conceiving that the trousers taken were the remnants of a corpse, and there is every thing to see a more or less recent remnant of the other wearers reposing on the bottom. That ring party has for some time been the Lone Fisherman in the stream of politics, fishing, fishing constantly, toiling day and night and catching something that was not angled for, some unique and terrifying wanderer of the waters, or some unexpected rubbish in the shape of old trousers whose owners may never very possibly come back to the clothing, if living, and if really drowned will not come to light until the rivers give up their dead. The ring Lone Fisherman undoubtedly thought he had made a fine cast for bull pouts and suckers when he undertook to make the republican party choose between swallowing his party bait or starvation, but the anti-ring eel was so lively when brought to the surface that he ran all over the Lone Fisherman and frightened him so badly that we don't believe he will dare to fish with that bait any more, lest he might catch another fish that was terrifyingly lively even on dry land. Occasionally the Lone Fisherman changed his bait to the anti-coolie minnow but he had not fairly got his line down when he got snagged and lifted to the surface an old pair of dirty trousers, marked "Hipple Mitchell" and the Lone Fisherman remembered that a fellow of that name had not been seen here in his usual haunts for some time and that since he hadn't been hanged he was probably drowned. The ring Lone Fisherman begins to think it wasn't a very good day for sport and still he hates awfully to go home with nothing but Mitchell's old trousers, so he will probably keep on fishing, hoping to take something marketable. The live fish he takes are all too lively, like the anti-ring eel that breaks his hook and then wriggles all over him, until he wishes he had never been born, while the rescue of the old adulterous gum shoes and bigamous breeches of Mitchell from the dreamless ooze of an infamous past don't seem likely to afford any solid nutriment this year, for water soaked clothing of this sort can't be made into a chowder, for this excellent reason that you want something for a chowder besides an ancient and fishlike smell. It is a kind of old crow that is sure to be rejected even by those who usually yield reluctantly to the capillary attraction of the very cheapest sort of political hash.

The ring Lone Fisherman is still fishing. He don't want to go home with so few table fish in his creel; he looks ruefully at the old boots and the like that he has so laboriously landed, he thinks of that very ugly and aggressive eel that broke his hook and wriggled over him until he felt like a young girl whose back had been a circus track for a very large snake, and begins to think that he is not making a good living as an angler, and yet he keeps on fishing, never really changing his hook except when broken, although frequently changing his fly, and the consequence is that the ring Lone Fisherman is bound to grow very lonesome. He must go home soon for he is about out of bait, nearly out of hooks, and wholly out of whisky. The Lone Fisherman drowns, but even the most enthusiastic, the most unsocial angler must go home, when bait, hooks, whisky and bread all begin to fail him, and worse yet, the fish have stopped biting that are worth taking. Hungry, athirst, luckless, lonesome, the ring Lone Fisherman is nearly ready to wind up his line, curse his fortune, imprecate the weather, and with slouching step, a surly look and downcast face slink home by the back ways so as to avoid meeting people who will ask him "What luck?" when he hasn't anything to show but Mitchell's old trousers, which resemble Mitchell's political principles in that they are "neither fish, flesh, fowl nor good red herring."

The Corvallis Gazette comments savagely on the action of the liquor ring for its course in the election in Benton county. It says the whisky element worked unitedly for the election of Cauthorn (democrat) to the state senate, and by a not uncommon coincidence had the aid of the prohibitionists. By persons from Linn county THE OREGONIAN is informed that circulars were sent from the Liquor Dealers' association of Portland to the saloon keepers of Linn urging them to support Black for the senate, which they did. Black, however, was defeated. From sources of undoubted veracity THE OREGONIAN has it that instructions were sent out to many counties by the liquor ring of Portland to concentrate all efforts upon particular men for the senate. Our informants have seen such letters in Benton, Marion, Linn and Lane. In some cases the candidates designated for the support of liquor men were democrats, in others republicans. All know how the liquor ring of Portland supported Steel. Well known democratic liquor sellers worked all day for him at the polls. Steel denies that he has made any promises to the liquor ring, but no one who knows him places the less confidence in any statement he may make. The basis of the edifice of politics which he has pursued for many years is trading, trickery and lying.

A special from Washington to a San Francisco paper gives this: "The president has expressed himself as much gratified over the result of the Oregon election. He regards it as an endorsement of his course." The president very likely is "gratified," but inasmuch as he is a sensible man it is not probable that he has said that he regards the result in Oregon as an "indorsement of his course." In the Oregon election President Cleveland was not so much as thought of. The republicans of the state were simply settling the account with the Hipple-Mitchell ring. President Cleveland is making a fairly good administration, and probably he will be renominated for the presidency in 1888. But he will not get the electoral vote of Oregon, and should Blaine be the candidate against him, Blaine will take the state by 3000 to 5000 majority. THE OREGONIAN is bound as an independent and candid journal to say this, though it is not a Blaine paper.

The west half of lots 5 and 6, in block 254, 50x100 feet, sold under the hammer on Saturday for $6750. This, with other recent sales, shows that everywhere within the city of Portland prices for real estate are keeping well up. There has not at any time been a decline in values here. During the "boom" there was much reckless speculation in lands lying within the vicinity of this city, and in such lands there has been a great loss of money. It is not fair to credit losses in outside property to the city of Portland, where there has in reality been no decline.

In the official count of representatives for this county, as published in THE OREGONIAN of Friday last, the footing gave Harris a total of 5793. It should have been 5643. In the Portland precincts Summers was credited with 2959 votes. It should have been 2759. These errors have raised some inquiry, which may be set at rest by stating that the results are as hitherto declared. Harris has eight votes more than McMillen, and the latter therefore is beaten by D. W. Taylor.

The jubilation of our democratic brethren is natural in the circumstances, but they make a great mistake in claiming the result as a party victory. They owe their success to the determination of large numbers of republicans to retake the managers and bosses of their own party. If our democratic brethren regard this result as an indication that Oregon is a sure democratic state, future elections are likely to undeceive them.

The city republican committee has called a convention to nominate candidates for the common council and has appointed a day for the primaries. What the convention may do will be taken by the electors for what it shall be worth and nothing more. If the candidates prove to be good men it will be very well, but if not, the fact of their bearing the republican party name, brand or trademark will have no weight whatever.

BRIEF MENTION.

New bill at The [illegible] this evening.

Regular monthly meeting of the board of trade [illegible] this evening.

Passed Medford [illegible] arrive over the O. & C. [illegible]

Good photos at the most reasonable prices [illegible] Cabinets $4. Work guaranteed.

W. H. Byrnes, formerly with A. L. Bancroft & Co., and H. Tu[illegible], of the Schmidt label works, [illegible] on the [illegible] steamer to take positions [illegible]

The monthly mothers' meeting of the W. C. T. U. will take place at the hall on First street [illegible] this afternoon at 3:30. The program will be both interesting and important.

From [illegible] yesterday it is reported [illegible] the river of three inches in the twenty-four hours preceding. The late cool spell has probably [illegible] a very high water talk for this season.

The remains of Edward J. van Fridagh arrived here yesterday from St. Louis. Accompanying the body was a floral tribute sent by the clerks in [illegible] as a mark of their respect and esteem.

J. McMullen, of the San Francisco Bridge Co., [illegible] is the company is the lowest bidder for the work of [illegible] a bridge across [illegible] at Salem, and he is here looking after the matter.

The moonlight excursion to Vancouver will leave the foot of Morrison street this evening promptly at 8:00 o'clock. The Sterling band will be on board. Tickets 50c; can be secured at the wharf or at the music store of D. W. Prentice.

"What is that, mother?" "A masher, dear. You will always find it standing here on the corner of the street with a ten cent cane and a cigarette. Don't touch it, dear; it was raised a pet." "Will it bite, mother?" "Well I should shout. It will [illegible] a free lunch for all that's out."

About 1200 people visited the City park yesterday and amused themselves strolling through the shady paths and sitting under the green trees. The general opinion expressed was that the new band stand was the right thing in the right place. It will be occupied by a band next Sunday.

E. W. Kraus was brought down from Celilo yesterday and incarcerated in the county jail pending his trial on a charge of passing counterfeit money. The accused is held by order of U. S. Commissioner Paul R. Deady. As a matter of course he says he is innocent, and expresses surprise at having been arrested.

Early yesterday morning a report was made at the police station that a longshoreman residing on Tenth street between D and E had been beating his wife in a shameful manner. It is said to be a common occurrence for this fellow to thus satisfy his spleen against the woman, but somehow always escapes arrest and justly deserved punishment.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

A CHASTLY FIND.—Yesterday [illegible] Mr [illegible] of the Northwestern [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] brewery [illegible] the purpose of burying [illegible] They proceeded to a spot where [illegible] rock [illegible] the ground [illegible] After digging [illegible] they came across a wooden box about two [illegible] feet [illegible] and two feet in width [illegible] [illegible] at the [illegible] operations for the purpose of [illegible] and were horrified by finding [illegible] a corpse probably that of [illegible] was covered over with old [illegible] in the early investigations [illegible] that it had been [illegible] and other [illegible] Mr Cundall [illegible] of the party crept into town and notified Coroner Cooke [illegible] having the other [illegible] keep watch. Mr Cooke repaired to the scene [illegible] to find that everybody had gone and the [illegible] which [illegible] were discovered [illegible] earth. He will go out again this morning [illegible] the body [illegible] and provide circumstances warrant will hold an inquest and further investigate the case.

THAT FISH LADDER.—Mr Wallace Baldwin who as commissioner for the state superintended the construction of the fish ladder at Oregon City yesterday paid it a visit of inspection. He reports that the upper end of the ladder is all right but that several of the stone steps at the upper end of the lower section have been knocked out by drift. A portion of the low wall along the resting pool thrown down and that a quantity of rocks and gravel has been washed into the latter. The [illegible] fender at the head of the ladder has stood firm but during the high water some logs passed over it and carried away a sort of gate intended to regulate the flow of water in the ladder. A trifling expenditure to clean out the gravel and replace three or four steps would make the ladder as good as ever and capable of doing the service for which it was intended. Probably there is no appropriation for any repairs to the ladder or for clearing it out. These items would have to be provided for if a much more expensive ladder had been built and with such a comparatively cheap affair some provision on these respects should have been made

NEW MARKET THEATER.—A Bunch of Keys, the most amusing and laughable of all comedies, will positively be produced to-night by Edouin & Sanger's original Sparks company. This is the greatest amusement event of the season. The advance sale of seats on Saturday was quite as large as that of "The Private Secretary" on Jeffreys Lewis last year and will of course be greater to-day. The merits of both company and play are well known as a great many Portland people have seen them in the East. It is an assured fact now that there will be an old time crowd in attendance at the New Market to-night which there always is when we have a first class company playing at this pleasant and most comfortable place of amusement. There will be no advance in prices. Admission to gallery will be [illegible] cents, orchestra chairs 75 cents, dress circle $1, seats reserved in advance to any part of the house $1

STEER ON A RAMPAGE.—Last night a little after 6 o'clock a steer broke loose from a band of cattle at the foot of Taylor street and proceeded on a tour of inspection. He ran frantically up Taylor street to Second, then to Salmon and Third and across one of the plaza blocks. While passing through the park he stuck his horns through a newspaper which was being perused by a man lying quietly by and narrowly missed raising the reader from a soft spot in the grass to a trip in a skyward direction. The steer then playfully attempted to butt a wag clerk named Johnson and another young man but missing him went for a Third street car horse driver and all. The combined force of the [illegible] was too much for the animal which gave up the siege in disgust and as a spectator remarked, "Started in the direction of the White house with a Japanese garden on its horns."

STATE UNIVERSITY COMMENCEMENT.—Following is a programme of the commencement exercises of the university of Oregon which commenced at Eugene yesterday by the preaching of the baccalaureate sermon by Rev G H Atkinson D D. At 10 o'clock to-morrow morning Prof. W Merritt will deliver an address before the literary societies of the university. At 3:30 P M Hon. Matthew P Deady LL D, will deliver an address before the university in Villard hall and at 8 P. M there will be a reunion of the literary societies. On Wednesday, at [illegible] P M the class tree will be planted and at 8 P M the alumni meeting will be held. The graduating exercises will take place on Thursday at 10:30 A. M, and the alumni dinner in the evening.

OPIUM SMOKERS PUNISHED.—Two deputy sheriffs arrived from Astoria yesterday in charge of Ah Sam and Ah Sin, two Chinamen who have been convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for six months each for opium smoking. This is the first conviction noted under the new state law. A number of opium fiends were arrested in Portland a couple of months ago in accordance with the provisions of the new statute and held to answer before the grand jury but for some reason that body ignored the bills. It is to be hoped that the chief of police will now be encouraged to haul up a few of the numerous opium fiends who have collected in this city which is looked upon all over the coast as an asylum for opium smokers

COMMITTEE APPOINTED.—At a meeting of the French residents of this city held yesterday at Liebig's hall the following committee was appointed to draft resolutions of thanks to Mr A Labbe the retiring French consular agent here: A Gaudron, F Lesourd, J Droulhat and H J Tyson. The same committee has also charge of the selection of a token of sympathy to be presented to Mr Labbe on the 14th of July when it is hoped that he will have sufficiently recovered his health to be able to be present at the celebration of the anniversary of the fall of the Bastile

"ALL ALONE HIS LONELY WATCH."—Constable Higley yesterday afternoon arrested A J Bloch on a charge of threatening to kill Mrs Adeline Bloch, his wife. It is a case of domestic infelicity. Mrs Bloch left her husband several days ago and when arrested by Constable Higley, Bloch was standing on the corner of Alder and East Park streets watching the house in which she had taken shelter. He gave bonds in the sum of $500 for his appearance when wanted in Justice Davis's court and immediately started back to resume his watch of Mrs Bloch's retreat.

TIME MADE BY THE TELEPHONE.—Following is a schedule of the fast trip of the steamer Telephone from this city to Astoria on Saturday last. Left Ash street dock at 6:00 A. M. reached the mouth of the Willamette in 42 minutes and passed Kalama in 1 hour and 58 minutes. Oak Point 2 hours 50 minutes. Brookfield 4 hours 7 minutes and reached her dock at Astoria in 4 hours and 53 minutes. She ran with 145 pounds of steam, with cut off and against a strong head wind to Kalama and a flood tide from Oak Point to Astoria

DECISIONS TO BE ANNOUNCED.—This morning in department No 2 state circuit court, Judge Stearns will decide the following cases: In the matter of the assignment of the Multnomah Lumbering company, on exceptions to assignee's compensation. Joseph F. Hill vs Mrs Amos W King, motion to amend complaint. A J Howard vs N M Chambers on demurrer. J Schmeer vs Anna C Schmeer, on demurrer

ALUMNI MEETING.—The annual meeting of the High School Alumni association for the election of officers for the ensuing year and the transaction of other business will be held this (Monday) evening in the new High school building at 7:30 o'clock sharp. City Superintendent Crawford has kindly given the society the use of his office for the meeting. A full attendance of members is desired

MASONIC GRAND CHAPTER.—The Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Oregon convenes at Masonic hall in this city at 10 o'clock this forenoon. The Grand Lodge A F & A M convenes at the same place at 10 o'clock on Thursday next. About 60 delegates have been appointed to attend this grand lodge and they have already commenced arriving

U S CIRCUIT COURT.—Judge Deady will deliver an opinion in this court this morning in the case of Hickox vs Elliott, Holliday and Lilinger

CONGREGATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

SECOND DAY

SALEM June [illegible]

Rev N Doane of M E church, Rev J W Webb of Christian church, Rev J W Hill, synodical missionary of Presbyterian church, Rev Dr Thompson of Presbyterian church, Rev M L Rugg of the Baptist church, Rev U C Jones of Beaver Creek were invited to sit as corresponding members. Fitting responses were made by each gentleman

Letters of dismissal were granted to Rev S S Wood to join the Helena association, Montana, and Rev W S Hamlin, to Bay association, California.

A letter was received from Chaplain Stubbs, acting pastor of the First church at Tacoma, W T, conveying fraternal regards and returning the letter of dismissal granted him one year ago. This letter was referred to the committee on credentials

A certificate was received authorizing Dr Atkinson to sign the constitution of this association on behalf of the Willamette association

Rev H. V. Rominger of Port Gamble, W. T read an able and carefully prepared paper upon "The present attitude of German thought on Evangelical Christianity." This paper was of absorbing interest and was handled in a manner showing the writer's thorough acquaintance with the subject. He resided in Berlin three years, and was an earnest student there during that time.

From the registrar's report of the work in the churches is compiled the following items of interest. There has been a reorganization of methods during the year. Instead of all the great region of Oregon and Washington being embraced by the general association alone, it is now divided into five local associations each of which has a distinct organization and functions with proper officers and a field of large demands and opportunity. The value of the new order of things is in the massing of the forces for good in each locality. The field is divided as follows

The Puget sound association includes the area west of the Cascade mountains and north of the Columbia river

The Willamette valley association includes the area in Oregon west of the Cascade mountains and the churches at Washougal and Mount Pleasant in Washington territory

The Mid-Columbia association includes all of Eastern Oregon and the portion of Washington territory lying contiguous to the Columbia river.

The Upper Columbia association includes the region in Washington territory lying east of the Columbia river

The Yakima association includes all the churches in the Yakima region.

Ten new churches have been organized in the Mid and Upper Columbia associations. Twelve [illegible] have been organized [illegible] year, all [illegible] given besides the new [illegible] without pastor. Notwithstanding this [illegible] them [illegible] [illegible] profession of faith. Those churches [illegible] number [illegible] profession [illegible] Albany, Corvallis, Salem [illegible] The [illegible] Cheney [illegible] Portland First church [illegible]

As [illegible] of the churches are [illegible] [illegible] with the magnitude [illegible] [illegible] the great responsibility [illegible] [illegible] Christian work [illegible] [illegible] However, the extending of [illegible] is the result of the [illegible] of churches in times past. The work is [illegible] forward in other lines. There [illegible] associational organizations among the German, Welsh and Swedes.

At 3 o'clock the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary societies held their meetings. This service was a delightful one and was helpful to every member of the association. The reports of the president, secretary and treasurer were read all showing an increased interest in the work. The sum of $570 was raised during the year to which [illegible] of Mrs Sarah Fyman Holbrook in the [illegible] mission [illegible] Africa, and letters from her were read. Mrs Holbrook is a niece of Rev Horace Lyman of Forest Grove. These societies deserve a hearty support and their meeting at this time was an excellent feature of the association.

The Home Missionary society resumed its business. The following resolution was adopted

Resolved, That the Home Missionary society of Oregon and Washington territory recognize the Christian Academy and College as an integral and essential part of its work within its bounds and that the appointment of Rev G. H. Atkinson D D by the trustees of Pacific University as financial agent for a special canvass for funds has the cordial and earnest sanction of this society. This was unanimously adopted

The following officers were elected: [illegible] Shindler president; [illegible] Allen Marum secretary; James Steel treasurer; Rev Geo H Atkinson D D superintendent home missions. The society then adjourned

In the evening a good attendance was present at 8 o'clock to hear some phases of the foreign missionary work. The first speaker was Rev Dime Staver of East Portland. He was stationed at Cesarea, Turkey for five years and spent three years before that in learning the Turkish language. While he was enthusiastic in the work and realized fully its great importance he was compelled to give it up and return to America on account of the ill-health of Mrs Staver. The next speaker was Hon Thos. McF. Patton returned from Kobe, Japan, where he was located for nearly two years as U S Consul. The remarks of both speakers were very interesting and brought the audience face to face with this work in a manner that was really effective. Mr. Patton paid a glowing tribute to the efficiency of the missionaries in Japan also to the general intelligence of the Japanese and their kindly disposition towards the missionaries. He mentioned having seen two Japanese who in years past lived in Salem and Forest Grove. They are now Christian teachers there and are exercising a wide influence for good

THIRD DAY—MORNING SESSION

After devotional exercises business was resumed. Rev Dr Atkinson, Rev J T Ellis, G Shindler, E W Allen, James Steel, Rev F P Roberts, Rev N F Cobleigh and Rev H I Bates were elected delegates to the national council, and the registrar was authorized to fill any vacancy that might occur

Rev Geo H Lee and George H Himes who were delegates to the Washington territory association last year, made a brief report of their work there

Rev [illegible] McConaughey was chosen to preach the associational sermon next year, and Rev J W Harris alternate

Rev [illegible] Haskell was selected to preach the communion sermon in 1887 and Rev H Rominger alternate

The place of holding the next meeting of the association was referred to the business committee

Report of committee on Sunday schools was made by Rev A W Bower. He discussed the subject earnestly, showing the practical value of this work. Considerable enthusiasm was aroused and stirring words were uttered by James Steel, Rev G A Lockwood the moderator, E W Allen, Rev D Staver, Rev F P Roberts, Rev T L Clapp

Resolutions of thanks to the O & C R R for reduced fares and for hospitality to Salem friends were unanimously passed.   G H H

CO. G's EXCURSION.

The steamer Olympian arrived here at 1:30 this morning from the mouth of the Columbia with Company G of the Oregon state militia, and a large number of their friends. In every respect was the excursion a success. Sunday's OREGONIAN contained a notice of the royal send off given to the party along the wharves so it was all the way down the river and there being three separate objects for compliment it was no wonder for here was the governor elect and family, the magnificent vessel which was to-day her maiden voyage in Oregon waters, and last but not least Company G. At Astoria nearly half the population was around the wharf and in the streets leading thereto. Cushing post G A R band played "Hail Columbia" while the steamer was landing. A committee of leading democrats came aboard and escorted Governor Pennoyer to a carriage and a procession followed it. Company G headed by their own band, followed, marching three abreast and taking up the width of the street. Big Jones wearing a helmet and blue military suit played the drum major in fine style. Every member of the company wore his best street suit, a silk hat and a jaunty grip strapped over the left shoulder and the party of forty looked every inch sixty dollars a week-comedians. The largest audience of the season greeted the boys at Ross's Opera house. It was a fashionable audience down stairs and an appreciative one in the balcony. The next governor occupied one of the lower boxes. After the curtain went up and just as stage manager Bangs announced "opening overture" and everything was expectancy some ardent democrat in one of the upper boxes, opposite Pennoyer arose and addressing the audience proposed three cheers for Pennoyer which were given. Except occasional want of harmony between musicians and singers the performance went first rate. It was impossible to secure the regular orchestra, so the best musicians to be had were engaged but there was hardly time for sufficient rehearsal, and Cooking ham who directed the music had a trying time of it two or three times during the evening. The first part was excellent, and between the eight end men about a dozen clever gags were gotten up on the trip down all of local application and general enough every time to bring down the house. Lamb and Howard's banjo sketch could not have been done better by professionals and the ballad horn duet of Pallenius and Jones was a gem. In the opening chorus—the Peer's chorus from Iolanthe—for the words "Bow bow ye lower middle classes" the boys substituted "Bow, bow, to Governor Pennoyer," and turned toward him when they sung the line, much to the amusement of the audience

At six yesterday morning the Olympian steamed over to Fort Canby where about half the party went ashore and spent the day inspecting the lighthouse the life saving station and the batteries. The weather was perfect. Owing to a misunderstanding as to whether the Olympian would be allowed to land at the Ilwaco wharf, the steamer did not go over but the tug Michigan and barge were chartered and took all the passengers who desired to go with less than half an hour's delay. There was not the slightest symptom of seasickness in the trip across from Astoria. A large sidewheel ship rides a swell far better than a propeller, and the rolling is hardly perceptible.

Arrangements for serving meals to so large a number of passengers were not so good as they should have been. The veteran Dan O'Neill went down with the excursion, and it seemed like old times to have him around attending in his usual urbane manner to the wants of passengers. It will be pleasant news to seaside visitors to know that Mr O'Neill will be with the Olympian during the summer season.

Company G are under deep obligations to Mr Cookingham for his invaluable services in connection with the Astoria performance

Liquor Dealers in Portland

Pendleton East Oregonian

The liquor dealers of Portland have made consummate asses of themselves in this election in attempting to dictate, not only to all people of the city, but of the entire state as well, how they should vote. These unscrupulous corruptionists had "their men" picked out for supreme judge, district judges and state senators, and issued orders to all saloon keepers that these men must be elected at whatever cost. It is said that Strahan was their man for supreme judge and it is certain that Olmstead was their man for judge of this district. In Portland they dictated the election of George A Steel for state senator, and the defeat of T. A. Davis. The result was that Steel was barely elected in a county largely republican, and containing the city of Portland with its hundreds of saloons. In this, the Seventh senatorial district, the orders went out to every saloon keeper that Wager must be beaten and Cornoyer elected, and the liquor dealers' agent boasted that they had $10,000 to expend in Umatilla and Morrow counties for that purpose. Yet what is the result? Wager is elected by the largest majority ever given to any candidate, and if the people had fully understood and believed in the truth in regard to the action of the whisky association, his majority would have been double or treble what it is.

It is to be hoped that the liquor dealers will take a hint and retire from their attempt to run the politics of the state. Their action in this campaign has prejudiced against them hundreds of men who were friendly before and driven them in sympathy at least into the temperance ranks. When the whisky men of Portland attempt to buy up all the courts and the legislature of the state, it is time they were given to understand that they do not own a majority of the voters of this state, body and soul. If the legislature and the courts deal more rigorously than ever with the liquor-sellers, they can blame no one but themselves. They have shown that they are not fit to be trusted with even as much power as they now possess. When a liquor dealers' association says to the people of the state "You must elect certain judges and senators to please us, and so that we can have laws all our own way," it is time to check their aggressive impudence.

How to Get Rid of the Surplus and Blair.

Congress can get rid of a great responsibility by making Senator Blair assignee of the Union. It would be hard to find a more thorough ass'n he.

CHARGED WITH BURGLARY.

Arrest of B Griffith, Supposed to be One of the Men who Attempted to Rob the Lane County Safe

[illegible] deputy sheriff of Lane county arrived here from Kalama yesterday having [illegible] Griffith [illegible] the arrest of [illegible] [illegible] a timber [illegible] logging camp in the Cowlitz [illegible] Washington territory on a charge of burglary

On the night of [illegible] of April two men were detected in an attempt to rob the county safe in the court house at Eugene City. One of them was [illegible] and [illegible] a policeman [illegible] escaped by the back door [illegible] breaking into the [illegible] through the window to the ground [illegible] night policeman who [illegible] to the river [illegible] [illegible] from the [illegible] through which he had [illegible] The man Griffith mentioned above [illegible] the party who jumped through the window. The bleeding [illegible] reached the river found a boat [illegible] He borrowed a [illegible] off the limb and [illegible] Harrisburg where [illegible] [illegible] which was found [illegible] with blood. The authorities [illegible] as the marshal of [illegible] [illegible] pistol at him when ordered to surrender and [illegible] which he leaped and [illegible] shortly after it was [illegible] suspicion pointed to as the [illegible] burglar was working at Weidler [illegible] [illegible] Perry and Simmons [illegible] getting wine [illegible] the Villard house a dinner [illegible] and escaped. His [illegible] caused the officers naturally to suppose that he was guilty so the [illegible] tracked him to a timber logging camp [illegible] [illegible] sheriff Griffith [illegible] whereabouts [illegible] arrest. Griffith protests his innocence and tells a very plausible story. He says he has been persecuted by one of those horrid creatures known as grass widows, and when he saw the officers after him he supposed they were sent by her, and he was bound to escape or die but he knew nothing about the safe cracking. He does not look like a desperate safe robber and it may turn out that he is not the man wanted

Warm springs Johnny, an old scout who lives with the Indians when at home and who is supposed to be the other burglar, was arrested a short time since for stealing a ring from a lady in Eugene. He had given the ring to an Indian who when charged with the theft, said the ring had been given to him by Johnny. The ring when stolen had two bangles chained to it, which were missing. Johnny was about to be discharged when a boy who was probably inspired threw a rock at a swallow and killed it and in its bill was found the lost bangles. They matched the ring and rendered it possible to hold Johnny in custody. Whether he or Griffith had anything to do with the smashing of the safe or not will probably be demonstrated before long

STARS vs PORTLANDS

No Hole in the Fence this Time, and the Stars Win by a Score of 12 to 6

The Portlands and Stars played their second game yesterday at City View park. The game was a very poor exhibition of the national sport. The Stars defeated the Portlands by a score of 12 to 6. Muller again proved too much for the boys in brown. The Portlands played Glendenning and Timmons as their battery and the Stars Muller and Creegan. Up to the seventh inning the game was very fair sport but in that inning the Portlands seemed to get on to Muller. Glendenning led off with a beautiful double-bagger, and by a succession of errors Timmons, [illegible] and Glendenning scored. Timmons took second on Coulter's hit. Connelly hit a long one to left which was neatly caught and fielded to second in time to head off Timmons. Nagle threw to Ganong to stop Coulter, but the ball went away over his head and away Coulter went. Muller in his endeavor to get the ball and field it from the pitcher's box seemed to get rattled, and before he was in position to finally put him out Coulter scored. The Stars batted heavily all the way through and in the eighth inning when Bailey was put into the box they scored four runs by a succession of errors, Bailey twice filling the bases with men on called balls. In the eighth inning a dispute arose and the balance of the game was played under protest by the Portlands. Carroll while running from second to third, was struck by a ball batted by Creegan, and it was claimed that he should have been declared out. The point is here—if the ball struck Ganong by passing through Buchtel he was not out and Buchtel made an error but if he was struck by the ball first before reaching Buchtel he should have been declared out. Glendenning did excellent work, especially in watching his bases although his tricks savored very strongly of a balk. Muller is most valuable acquisition to any nine he not only pitches a very wicked ball but he is the strongest batter of the Stars

ELECTION NURSERY RHYMES

Pooh Bah Simon met a fly man
Going to prepare,
Election tickets for his precinct
All upon the square
Says then the "fly" man unto Simon
What have you got there?

Then answered Simon to the fly man
I've tickets by the score
With Strahan's name for Waldo's placed
To cheat the voters sore
Says then the fly man unto Simon
Just let me have some more.

Then went the fly man to a sly man
And told the bogus game
The Simon racket—all can track it
Whence the tickets came
Says then the sly man unto Simon
We've trapped the one to blame.

Oh Mr Reader you're a feeder
To give him such a fill
Alas poor Simon's good die man
Our Pooh-Bah's very ill
And offers such a weakened frame
To test the headsman's skill

When Baby was sick we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test short weight alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans.

ECONOMY

Is a better capital than money—it always bears interest, and the capital cannot be lost.

We have a great many things to interest you in, and you will find it economy to trade with us. WE HAVE BUT ONE PRICE and that marked down to the lowest notch. We give full value for every dollar that you spend with us, knowing well that it is to our interest to do so. We don't want your trade for just once, but we want it for all times

WE HAVE THIS WEEK

ODD LOTS OF PANTS:

A lot left from suits and from regular lines just one, two and three pair of a kind left. We have bunched the lot and marked them down one-third off their regular price. There are only about eighty pair, and the low prices on them will make them go in a hurry

ODD LOTS OF SUITS.

As it is getting late in the season our stock of suits is naturally getting broke, that is, we are out of some sizes in certain lots which cannot be filled up any more this season. We have put these suits on separate counters and marked them way down—some of them at actual New York cost. If those in want of a Summer Suit will call early they can save a nice few dollars.

SUMMER PLAITED COATS.

Every one now a days wants a Norfolk. We have a big line at very low prices, for Men and Boys, in both cloth, cassimere and seersucker coats

Make no mistake. Do not get in the wrong store. Kohn the Clothier is only on corner of Second and Morrison sts.

Social Customs Among the Kaffirs—Wives Purchased on the Installment Plan

Incidents of Courtship and Wedding—Costume and Ornaments of the Bride—Moral Restraints and Punishment for Unchastity

The kaffir, although a polygamist, never ill treats his wives. But in war the savage nature preponderates. All the female captives are divided among the warriors, the younger ones being retained, while those who are too old to work or bear children are killed. The price of a girl, or an "entombi," as she is called, is from ten to fifteen cows, sometimes more, according to her comeliness. I was amused when I heard that the suitor could pay for his bride on the installment plan, a cow or two at a time. In San Francisco you can buy a piano or a sewing machine on that principle, but buying a wife in the same way was something I was not prepared to hear. When the Zulu lover has paid the greater part of his debt he is allowed to visit his dark beauty. I can not assert that in his gallantry he turns over the leaves of the latest Kaffir song, nor do I believe that the "old man" comes across the courtyard to turn off the gas, but it is the same old story, anyway. After whispering in her ears the tales of love which the Zulu tradition teaches, he certainly has to sleep in the men's part of the kraal. If he belong to a neighboring village he picks up his assegai and sentimentally wends his way home by moonlight, no doubt cudgeling his brains as to how he is going to pay the next assessment on his matrimonial stock.

If a girl be good looking—and some of them really are—she is the victim of rivalry. Not being a factor in the parental authority, she is accustomed to hear that there is a better offer for her than the one her father first accepted. "Antelope Jim" has offered four more cows than "Half a Crown John." But as a general thing the old man keeps his word and the original price is strictly adhered to. When the last cow is paid up, the contract is ready to be fulfilled. You couldn't get any one in Frisco to buy a piano or a sewing machine on such an "installment plan." But the Zulu arrangement may be an improvement. I knew a man in Petaluma some years ago who bought a horse for which he was to pay in six equal payments and had one year's time. In six months the animal got blind of one eye, his hoofs cracked, the botts paid a friendly visit and "came to stay." Before nine months had passed the horse was turned out to die, and my friend Brown paid his last instalments on a "dead horse." I thought of Brown's purchase, but he had the benefit of possession, while the Kaffir must pay up all arrearages before he can claim his property.

When the last cow is paid up a grand pow wow is in order. One of the animals is killed, or an equivalent number of goats. The girls are all engaged making Kaffir beer or stringing new beads and polishing up their brass wire jewelry. The bride, with her father, meets the groom and his friends at the entrance to the kraal, where all shake hands and everything goes on as "merry as a marriage bell."

Some of your lady readers may wish to know how the bride is dressed. Well, to commence with her hair, or rather wool, is done up in little ridges running from one ear to the other across the head until it reaches the top of the skull, then it changes its course and goes up and down to the neck behind the ears. The hair is stiffened with a red clay, mixed with palm oil or grease, which has a curious appearance, being blood-red. For a bridal robe the lady has a coat of oil or grease rubbed all over her body, which makes it shine like a piece of polished marble. Her fingers are adorned with brass-wire rings, on her wrists several rows of brass bangles, on her ankles iron rings, and she wears a nice little apron made of colored beads, about six inches square, fastened by a few strings of large green or yellow beads around her hips. For a back apron the skin of a monkey or goat hangs from her girdle and serves the purpose of a bridal train.

The bridegroom is dressed, or rather stripped, in the usual way. Sometimes a blanket or tiger's skin is thrown over his right shoulder, and this completes his wedding costume. After a big dinner of roast meat, cornmeal, mush and milk and kaffir beer, the night is spent in dancing, and the young couple take their departure at sunrise next morning to the sound of Kaffir drum and the blowing of horns. The father and mother kiss the daughter, and with a parting "Car muscheia" (be good), and another injunction, "Hamba quacheia" (go slow), they go on their way to raise cattle, corn and children.

When the girls of a Kaffir family are old enough they are sent in quest of cows, or the husband buys another young wife, thus increasing his stock and working capital at the same time. If, after two years, the wife has no children, the husband takes her back to her parents and, with a gesture and a grimace worthy of a Neapolitan, complains that the "enfansi" is "i muschia" (the woman is no good) and is only a "queen woman," and wants his cows back. He generally gets half the number and the wife is returned to the parents, where she is kept in the woman's side of the house until some other fellow wants a cheap drudge, as her price is considerably lowered. Sometimes a fellow gets a wife for two cows, which often turns out a good bargain. The old man tries hard to get the original value from the new son-in-law, but seldom succeeds.

If a girl or woman violates the laws of morality and thus lessens her value in the market, her parents take her to a precipice and throw her and child over. They sometimes tie their daughter on the ground and break an ant-hill over her and leave her in the hot sun to die of thirst and be eaten by the ants. This is something fearful. The African ant is a formidable insect. With the power of life and death in the hands of these savages, what horrible tortures they devise! My boy "Half a Crown" told me he had a sister who was executed in this way in Basutoland. The death is so slow and the pain so intense that it is said the unfortunate victims die raving mad.

SOME REMINISCENCES.

An Old Soldier Talks About His Experiences at the Front

Brooklyn (N. Y.) Eagle

"You don't believe all you read, do you, in these letters and papers on the war?" questioned an ex-officer of the army. "I don't. It isn't likely that a man remembers all the little details of things that happened twenty five years ago, as some of these reminiscence fellows appear to do. Do you think that you would remember that at 1:30 o'clock on the day of a big fight, when you were keyed up with excitement, you were standing on a certain knoll, and that a dozen yards to your right were two big oaks and that a field of oats lay a quarter of a mile to your left, and that the wood where the enemy was in hiding was 1500 feet from you? Some fellows have got more reliable memories than mine. Yet it's funny how a little thing will stick to a man sometimes, and how he'll forget important matters. I remember the first bullet that I heard, distinctly. We had just come up to the field and were lounging on the grass, waiting for somebody to do something, when some rebel sharpshooters in a thicket in our front began popping at us. I heard a loud whir-r-r pass between me and the captain of our company while I was talking with him, and I said, 'Hello, there's a bird.' I turned around to see what kind of a bird it was and a fellow in a regiment behind us pitched forward dead. Later in the day when we had changed position, we were drawn up before a sort of fence and I was talking with the captain again when another bullet passed between us and went 'chuck' into the fence. I think most men are afraid when they go into a fight, but I can honestly say I was not. I've seen men killed on either side of me, but there was something—excitement or what I don't know—that enabled me to face the thing out. An officer's post in a fight is worse than a soldier's. The man in the ranks can work, but an officer has simply got to stand there like a mark and take what he gets. Soldiers can't endure being fired at without having a chance to shoot back, and I've seen troops in an exposed position get perfectly wild when the lead dropped among them for a chance to take a turn at the rebs. I remember the first shell that passed over our company. It was after dark, and we could see it dropping towards us. Some of the men dodged, but an Irishman tossed up his cap and caught it and yelled a 'Whuroo' of defiance at it. Projectiles usually go a little too high [illegible] and at the beginning of a fight there are more torn caps than broken legs. I remember the Dutchman who was just nicked on the [illegible] the scalp, and who jumped about three feet and yelled 'Holy Moses! [illegible] in company B!' But it's astonishing how soon the men get hardened. I've often seen them laugh at the way a man would jump or tumble when he was shot. At the slaughter at Fredericksburg our regiment was at one time stopped in the advance by a stone wall, and while we were getting into shape the rebs opened a murderous fire on the rest of the line. There was one patch of ground that was quite steep, and whenever a man was hit as he went up that steep place he rolled over like a bag of potatoes, one or two of them made a regular somersault. Well, sir, our boys just laughed at that. They didn't laugh so much a minute later when we had to charge likewise, for some of them cut the same capers. I've seen two fellows get into a fight in the trenches and stand up to have it out, regardless of the fact that the instant their heads were in view of the Johnnies a half dozen rifles were drawing beads on them. But the hospitals were worse than the battlefields to my mind. There you got the worst of the whole thing all in a heap, sick, wounded, dying, dead, bloody, helpless and mangled. In the field you did not notice it so much and there was enthusiasm to tide you over the unpleasant features, but in the hospitals you were surrounded by disease and suffering. Men would die in their beds next to yours during the night and lie there until morning. The surgeon would operate on the patient next to you, perhaps, and while the victim was groaning you would think that your turn would come after his, and that would make you cheerful. On the whole I don't know but a quiet life suits me as well as that sort of thing and I guess there's about as much fun to be had here in New York as there is in camp."

Cranks at the Mint.

Lots of cranks visit the Philadelphia mint. The majority look sensible, and are well dressed, but some can be identified as insane at the distance of a block, and the attire of these is in keeping with their disordered intellects. Men and women who are a little "gone in the upper story," as the poet puts it, go to the mint usually with but one errand—to collect thousands of millions of dollars, which they firmly believe is there deposited to their credit. Most of them are from the city or vicinity, but once in a while one puts in an appearance who has come a goodly distance by rail to get money supposed to be all ready. By long and painful experience the jolly chief usher of the mint has been led to adopt one unvarying mode for the cranky visitors. He don't even fling them into the street. He don't even order them away, or advise them to go to a place where intellects are cheaply repaired, but instead, he agrees to all they say, acknowledges that there are tens of thousands of millions of dollars, as the case may be, waiting for them, and then gets rid of them by some polite excuse of temporary delay in payment of their claims, or sends them upon fool's errands to see government officials who exist only in imagination.

Yesterday a lady with a wall eye, a ragged black cloak and a bushy head of uncombed hair walked up the Chestnut street steps of the mint and demanded to be introduced to the "treasurer of the United States."

"He is out," said the chief usher, who had had a painful previous experience with this visitor.

"When will he be in?" she asked tartly.

"I don't know, ma'ame."

"Show me the chief clerk."

"He has gone to lunch."

"When will he be in?"

"In a couple of hours. Call again."

"I'll wait," said the lady with the unfurnished skull. "I have $75,000 here on deposit. I'm going to draw it to-day. No nonsense, young man," and she sat firmly down upon a leather covered chair.

By persuading her to let her money lie a day or two in order to "draw interest," she was induced to depart.

Not long ago a clean-shaven gentleman, 40 or 45, well dressed, looking the typical man of business, came to the mint and asked to see the cashier. He was taken to that official's office.

"I am Gen Jackson," said the visitor, "and I have several millions on deposit here, placed to my credit by my friend, the Baron Alphonse de Rothschild, of Paris."

"Ah, general, glad to see you. Be seated. Your money's all right."

"But I want to take it away."

"Now?"

"Right off."

"I am sorry," said the official. "But the fact is we have nothing we could give you except silver. Your deposit would fill several wagons. Leave your address and we will send it."

"General Jackson" thanked his informant, wrote John ——, 11 — Girard avenue and left in the confident expectation of seeing his three millions carried home.

Some years ago when the chief usher of the mint hadn't had very much experience with cranks, a wild-eyed gentleman with a spare body and a fierce moustache, strode into the mint and asked for $100,000 which he said he had left there.

"Get out. You have no money here!"

"Do you think I'm a fool? Don't I know what's what. I tell you the money belongs to me. Hand it over, or I'll ——" And the visitor stepped forward, glowing with indignation, with his fist upraised.

Jay Gould Not Worrying About Silver

Philadelphia Press

"Have you any fears about the silver question obtruding itself unpleasantly?" Mr Gould smiled, ran his hand in his pocket, jingled some loose change and said: "The silver question is too deep for me. I take silver and never refuse it. I find it goes and I don't bother my head any further about it."

[illegible] SALICYLICA is not an untried experiment that may do more harm than good. Its efficacy in all cases of rheumatism has been tested for the past ten years and it stands to day the only positive specific for rheumatic ailments.

"The Head Station," by Mrs. Campbell Praed, is the latest issue of Harper's Handy series, just received by the book stores.

STATISTICAL OREGONIAN.

Send ten (10) cents for a copy of the twenty-page New Year's edition.

COMMERCIAL.

SATURDAY, June 12

Overland receipts include 400 sks sulphur, 2 cars harvesting machinery, car implements, Corliss engine, 1 bbl [illegible] confectionery, 51 cs boots and shoes.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Last twenty four hours 1087 ctls wheat, 90 bbls flour, 1086 ctls oats, 191 ctls millstuff, 25 sks potatoes, 5 834 lbs wool, 895 lbs hides, 160 lbs hops, 134 cs eggs, 10 pkgs butter, 2 0 sheep. Also 15 [illegible] ctls wheat, 420 bbls flour, 1300 ctls barley, 744 sks flaxseed, 160 [illegible] lbs wool, 1,1[illegible] lbs hides from the Eastern section.

FREIGHTS—The market is without new interest, and is seemingly in total neglect both for spot and to arrive. Of the seven engaged vessels in port one is loaded, two are at Astoria for salmon and the others are in various loading stages. San Francisco reports another charter for wheat to Australia with no business for Europe.

REGISTERED TONNAGE STATEMENT
In port—Finished with grain	9[illegible]
Loading or to load	7 0 9
Iron disengaged	1 202
Wood disengaged	1 519—13 048
On way—Due June July	11 8[illegible]9
Due July August	11 3[illegible]
Due later on	11 340—

WHEAT—A cargo of Walla Walla from February shipment sold for 31s 6d, and this is said to be more than can be secured now for prompt shipment. Another cargo sold off coast a few days ago for 33s 3d, and as the February clearance is not far off it will be seen that the English markets are declining more rapidly than intimated by public cables. Here $1 0 is very best offer for Walla Walla with $1@1 02½ freely spoken of as probable prices very soon. There are few sellers at $1 0, but enough to fill the scant needs. Valley is difficult to quote. Buyers talk $1 10, but we are reported no sales. The tenor of advices is such as to frighten holders and cause exporters to hang back.

OATS—Good Oregon sold in San Francisco at $1 3[illegible] and this is the highest reported price lately paid there for our grades. Receipts are falling away, yet are very liberal when market conditions are considered. Best feed does not worth not over 3[illegible]@3[illegible]c and more commonly [illegible] had in a retail way.

POTATOES—Some new Oregon in, but they are small. California in good movement at 1¼c for best. Old bring [illegible] over stock [illegible] light demands.

ONIONS—Fair trade during the call [illegible] supplied by California at 1[illegible]c.

PROVISIONS—Receipts of Eastern cured meats are fair, although the [illegible] has increased. Local choice is selling well and values throughout are steady.

CHICKENS—Dull market at [illegible] prices show no change. Quote $3@[illegible].

EGGS—Receipts again larger and there is little prospect for any improvement. Quote [illegible] with concessions on large lots.

SALMON—During the first days of the month the run was very fair, but it has since fallen away. The Columbia [illegible] and with next week canners anticipate a better catch. The movement east by rail this month foots up well, shipments to date being 18 [illegible] cases. In part these liberal shipments can be traced to low freight rates, especially favorable rates having been secured of late.

GRAIN BAGS—That pool rates are being shaded there can be no question. Offers for June delivery at [illegible] have been sent here. Presumably this is the work of outsiders, but that it is solely so may well be doubted, or the pool may be unloading some through outsiders at less than established pool rates. The movement with us is yet light.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Governments were steady. There was an unusual dearth of news to-day affecting values of stocks and the market was left entirely alone by large operators. Western Union was remarkably strong in early dealings, but afterwards fell flat with the rest of the list. Vanderbilts were all quiet. The market closed steady. Final figures were equally divided between gains and losses. St Paul & Duluth common is up 1⅛ and consolidated gas is down 1⅛ per cent. Other changes are for small fractions only.

Mining shares on the last deal sold as follows: Little Pittsburg, 30; Navajo, [illegible]; Robinson consolidated, 40.

MARK LANE REVIEW

LONDON, June 12.—The Mark Lane Express in its weekly review of the British grain trade says: Grateful showers have helped vegetation. All crops are remarkably backward and a late harvest is inevitable. Wheat is weakening. Flour is dull and cheaper. Trade in foreign wheat is of a retail character. Foreign flour is lower. American spot flour is one shilling cheaper. There were eight arrivals and two sales. Five cargoes were withdrawn and one (California) remained. Trade forward is lifeless. New crop California wheat is offered at 31s with no takers. There will be no market Monday.

Earliest Methods of Measuring Time

Popular Science Monthly

The story is that King Alfred had no better way to tell the time than by burning twelve candles, each of which lasted two hours, and when all the twelve were gone, another day had passed. Long before the time of Alfred and long before the time of Christ, the shadow of the sun told the hour of the day, by means of a sun-dial. The old Chaldeans so placed a hollow hemisphere, with a bead in the center, that the shadow of the bead on the inner surface told the hour of the day. Other kinds of dials were afterwards made with a tablet of wood or straight piece of metal. On the tablets were marked the different hours. When the shadow came to the mark IX, it was 9 o'clock in the morning. The dial was sometimes placed near the ground or in towers or buildings. Two sun dials are on the Gray and Black nunnery in Ottawa, the capital of Canada. The old clock on the eastern end of Faneuil hall, in Boston, was formerly a dial of this kind, and on some of the old church towers in England you may see them to-day. Aside from the kinds mentioned the dials now in existence are intended more for ornament than for use. In the days when dials were used each one contained a motto of some kind, like these: "Time flies like the shadow," or "I tell no hours but those that are happy."

But the dial could be used only in the day time, and even then it was worthless when the sun was covered with clouds. In order to measure the hours of the night as well as the hours of the day, the Greeks and Romans used the clepsydra, which means, "the water steals away." A large jar was filled with water and a hole was made in the bottom through which the water could run. The glass in those days was not transparent. No one could see from the outside how much water had escaped. So there were made on the inside certain marks that told the hours as the water ran out, or else a stick with notches in the edge was dipped into the water and the depth of what was left showed the hour. Sometimes the water dropped into another jar in which a block of wood was floating, the block rising as the hours went on. Once in a while some very rich man had a clepsydra that sounded a musical note at every hour.

All Run Down

From the weakening effects of warm weather, by hard work or from a long illness, you need a good tonic and blood purifier like Hood's Sarsaparilla. If you have never tried this peculiar medicine do so now. It will give you strength and appetite.

"I was completely run down, and was for nearly four years under medical treatment, being given up to die by physicians. My friends urged me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. At last I consented, and I have [illegible] taken anything which helped me as much as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which restored me to health and vigor. I have been taking it about four months and am now able to attend to my business and work all day with very little fatigue. I recommend it to any one whose system is prostrated." [illegible], Peoria, Ill.

William Buck, of North Bloomfield, N Y, suffered eleven years with a terrible varicose ulcer on his leg. It is that he was made to give up [illegible] and was [illegible] of the ulcer and also of catarrh by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

DR. VANMONCISCAR,

THE WELL KNOWN

SPECIALIST!

Proprietor and Consulting Physician of the Only Private Dispensary on the Pacific Coast Now Permanently Located at 132, 134 Third St., Portland.

DR. VANMONCISCAR has made the treatment of Private Diseases of Men a special study and practice for many years. Over 4000 cases treated yearly. Recent cases of private diseases cured in a short time. Ulcers, Humors and Blotches on Face or Body cured without giving Mercury or other Poisons. Mercury is the curse of the human race. Your children will suffer from its effect. Avoid it as you would avoid any deadly drug, and use no more. These diseases are being treated at his Dispensary without mercury.

DR. VANMONCISCAR is a graduate of a regular Medical College, is well known over the United States and Canada by thousands of old and young men he has cured, and it is a well known fact that for years he has confined himself to the study and treatment of Sexual and Chronic Diseases, thus giving him advantages few possess. Dr. Vanmonciscar addresses himself particularly to those who have already tried various physicians and remedies from whom they have received no benefit and who in fact have lost their money, harm being done. Medicine, like all other sciences, is progressive, and every year shows proof of its advance. [illegible] great curative power Dr. Vanmonciscar has arranged his treatment that it will afford not only immediate relief but permanent cures.

Young Men who are suffering from the effects of youthful indiscretions showing some of the following symptoms: Nervous and Physical Debility, Impotency (Sexual Incapacity), Lost Manhood, Abuse of the System, Exhausted Vitality, Confusion of Ideas, Dull and Loss of Brilliancy to the Eye, Aversion to Society, Despondency, Pimples on the Face, Loss of Energy and Frequency of Urinating. You may be in the first stages, but remember you are fast approaching the last. Do not let false pride and sham modesty deter you from attending to your ailments. Many a bright and naturally gifted young man endowed with genius has permitted this insidious monster to advance, racked his intellect and finally death claimed its victim. Remember that Procrastination is the thief of time. Sell not your pride and consult one who thoroughly understands your ailment, and who will know you are the unfortunate result of an ailment that has made life a drudgery and night hideous. Thousands upon thousands of men in good standing in the social world of prominence in the world are to-day suffering from the fruits of their doings, the seeds of which were sown during moments of thoughtlessness. Young man, turn a gaze upon thy companion [illegible] to substantiate this fact. Oh! could the control the arm of Fate or had he the power to live it over again, then he would not appeal to you more sincerely. Let your mind wander back to the much cherished counsels of a loving father and remember what you are to-day. Though you may for the present fill your station in society the time is as inevitable as fate when your brilliancy will fade, a thing apart, leaving you a stranded wreck—desolate, forgotten and lost. So embrace the opportunity and enjoy life and happiness longer. If you claim to be a man act your part manly. Do not console yourself with the thought that Nature will heal itself, for in doing so you not only fan the flame but wreck Nature and yourself. Remember, Large oaks from little acorns grow. Little ills germinate fatal diseases.

Middle-aged Men, married or single, who are prematurely old as a result of excesses or youthful follies and who are troubled by too frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and imparting a deposit of [illegible] in the urine and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear or the color will first be of a thin or milkish hue and again changing to a dark or torpid appearance causing nervous debility and loss of vitality. Remember this is the second stage of Seminal Weakness. In all such cases a perfect cure is guaranteed and a radical restoration of the Genito Urinary Organs. All interviews and letters are sacredly confidential. Medicines packed so as not to excite curiosity and sent by express if full description of case be given, but one personal interview in all cases preferred. Patients treated by case or monthly.

Call early and avoid crowding. Office hours 9 A M to 8 P M. Sundays, 10 A M to 2 P M.
